Anti-strip law 'bare' for now

BY ED LEPOMA

The county attorney hasn't worked out the bare details of an anti-strip club ordinance, but the Board of Supervisors has instructed him to get something on the books.

Board President Philip Moran reported Wednesday that "rumors are circulating that a nude bar might be locating in the Kiln" and in other areas of Hancock County.

"I hope we're totally overreacting," said Moran, but fellow supervisors unanimously supported him in his request to have an ordinance written that would ban strip clubs anywhere in the county.

Moran said it was important the county act now "before anything is grandfathered in." He apparently referred to current zoning laws which state if zoning is passed businesses now operating, but considered "non-conforming" would still be allowed to exist.

Gex was going out of town beginning Thursday, but said it was his understanding that supervisors instructed him to "draw up an ordinance relative to nudity in places that serve alcoholic beverages."

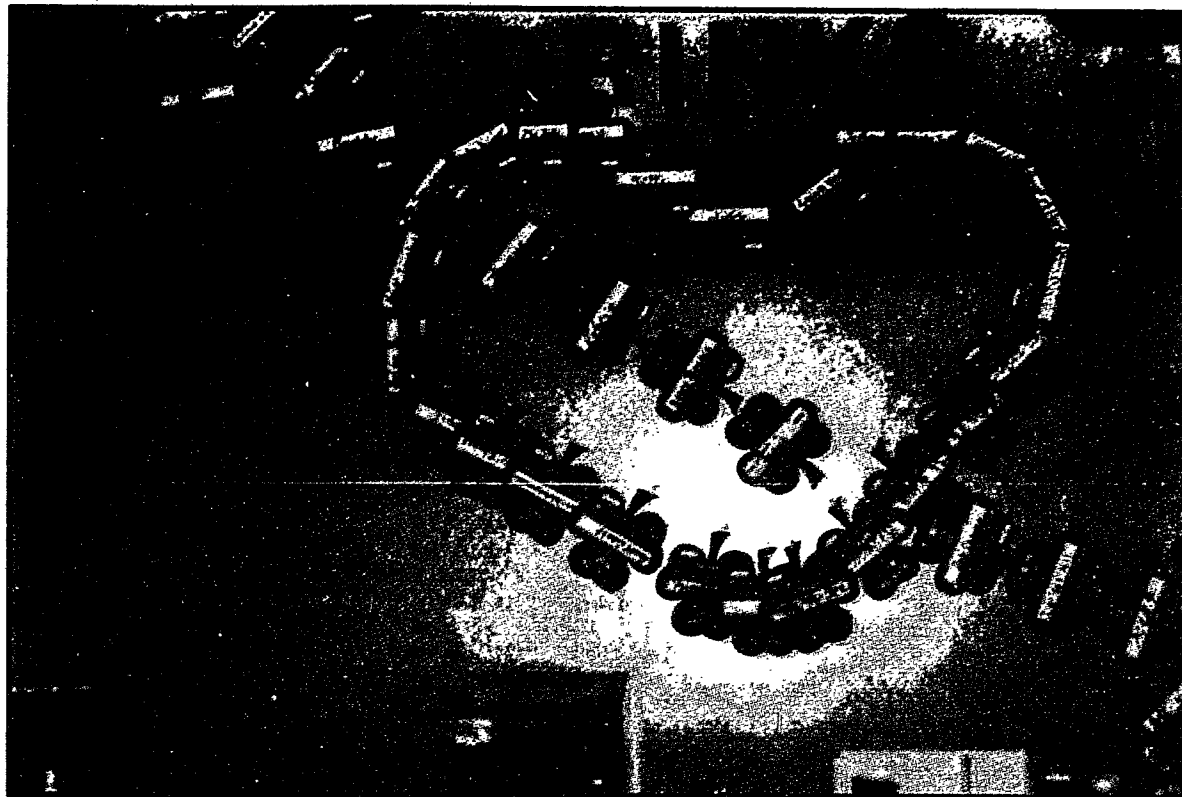

He said he would have to do some research before drafting the exact wording of the proposed ordinance.

It would be ready for the Board of Supervisors' April 1 meeting, Gex said.

The action by supervisors follows a joint news conference held Feb. 9 by Hancock Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, and the police chiefs of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Peterson said he had "received a (recent) telephone call and an office visit by a party who just wanted to let me

Shamrocks galore

The E/Z Serve (formerly Magic Mart) at Washington and Hwy. 90 is sprouting shamrocks while it collects donations for the annual National Muscular Dystrophy Drive. District Supv. Pat Roney says a green shamrock is posted when people donate $1 to the cause, and the yellow shamrocks display $5 donors. So far, the convenience store has collected over $800, she said. ## St. Joseph to celebrate centennial

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

A mass will be celebrated on the feast day of St. Joseph, March 19, at St. Joseph's Chapel on Dunbar Avenue, Bay St. Louis, marking the church's 100th anniversary.

Betty Benvenuti, in doing research on the chapel's history, reports she was able to find the exact information on the church in the archives of The Sea Coast Echo.

This information was found in the March 21, 1896 issue of The Echo.

To further verify the chapel's history, a plaque was retrieved some five years ago from the belfry by volunteer John Yatalese.

Benvenuti said, "In the issue May 16, 1896 of The Echo, there was also an article about the blessing of the chapel and its bell."

Yatalese volunteered to go into the belfry and take care of bees which were causing problems with parishioners during church services. Benvenuti asked him if he would check on the plaque while taking care of the bees, which he did.

The plaque was refinished for its proper display at the chapel.

The plaque was blessed by Right Rev. Thos Heslin, Rev. H. LeDuc, pastor, May 10, 1896.

The Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis was very prosperous during this time due to the Dunbar Seafood Factory and several other enterprises, Benvenuti reports.

Many of the factory's helpers were seasonable and were brought in from Baltimore, Md. for the oyster and shrimping seasons.

"Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church was a long distance for parishioners to walk from the area, and that is why the chapel was constructed and has been in continuous use and still is on a weekly basis.

"Without The Echo's help with their archives, I probably would have never found the church's complete history," Benvenuti emphasized.

The following is a copy of the article appearing in The Sea Coast Echo, Saturday, March 21, 1896:

Bay man guilty

It took a Hancock County Circuit Court jury a little over three hours this week to find a Bay St. Louis man guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol, causing death.

Following the verdict, Ronald A. Zoerner, 32, was remanded to the Hancock County jail, and sentenced to 20 years in prison. His attorney, Richard Dymond of Gulfport, said he plans to appeal.

Zoerner was charged with felony DUI and leaving the scene of the accident in the September 17, 1994 death of Marguerite M. Richardson, 48, of Waveland.

Richardson was struck and

Pass Christian projects near completion

BY TRACI BONNEY

The new Wolf River bridge is open for business, and the Civic Center and Health Department aren't far behind, according to Harrison County District 3 Supervisor David Larosa.

Larosa said recently that the $2.3 million bridge north of Pass Christian is open to traffic, and will be officially dedicated soon.

The concrete bridge replaced a wooden one that Larosa said was used when the state bought it from Louisiana and moved it to its location on Henderson Avenue, where it had been in use some 50 years before being removed.

In addition to being old and potentially dangerous, the bridge had a hairpin curve at its south base which posed a driving threat. The new bridge is south of the old one and starts in a straightaway.

Larosa said the county is in the process of constructing a boat launch between the new bridge and the old one.

"We're looking at two property options right now," he explained. "We anticipate starting construction no later than late spring, and we hope to start sooner than that."

Two other projects, a new County Health Department clinic on North Street at Davis and a Civic Center on Espy Avenue, are near finalization, he added.

County medical costs rising; legislative help may be on way

BY ED LEPOMA

The county has already spent $137,000 so far this year for housing and medical needs of patients awaiting transfer to the state's mental hospital in Whitfield, and the cost could exceed $250,000 before the fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

The grim news was delivered last week to the Board of Supervisors by County Comptroller Patty Greer, but it was not unexpected.

Chancery Court Clerk Tim Kellar and Board President Philip Moran said they have been looking into ways the county might cut down the cost, but so far, nothing has been decided.

There may be help on the horizon for all 82 counties in Mississippi, faced with the same rising costs, according to State Rep. J.P. Compretta.

Compretta said House Bill 13 has passed the House and Senate in the current session, which would allow counties to send the patients to Regional Mental Health Centers until Whitfield can take them. The closest one to Hancock County would be located in Long Beach, in Harrison County, he said.

Under that legislation, the state Mental Health Board may provide for "all or part of the costs of establishing and operating the holding centers in each district," but might ask counties to share in some of the costs.

Compretta said the Senate added a provision that the bill would be repealed after two years if it proved too costly, and the Chairman of the House Public Health Committee is looking at that amendment.

Compretta said if the chairman doesn't agree with the Senate amendments, he may refer the legislation to a joint House-Senate conference committee.

"Or, he may send it on just like it as for the governor's signature," said Compretta.

Greer told supervisors the county was already 107 percent over projected expenditures, with six months left to go in the fiscal year.

When the former Board of Supervisors adopted the operating budget for fiscal 96 last September, Greer recommended setting aside a total $128,000 to provide housing, food, medication, doctors and guard service for citizens who are ruled "mentally incompetent." In most cases, the patients have no relatives or friends to care for them at home and no means of support.

After they are declared incompetent, it is the burden of the county to house and care for them until there is room for the patient at Whitfield.

The county can't put them in jail with other prisoners, so has set aside a wing for them at Hancock County Medical Center. While patients are hospitalized, the county must also provide a guard for each of them on a 24-hour basis.

Greer estimated the yearly cost might exceed $200,000, but Kellar didn't agree. He said the final tab might well be "between $250,000 and $260,000."

"These people are eating our lunch," Moran said. "We've got to find some alternative."

Kellar told Supervisors he and Moran have been talking with Harrison County officials to see if they might provide space for Hancock County's patients at their Transitional Living Center.

He said patients there are cared for at a cost of about $130 a day. Kellar said the costs for guards at the hospital run $141 a day per person.

Since Oct. 1, the county has housed 23 patients at the county hospital, Kellar said.

"The bottom line isn't necessarily the cost to the county," said Kellar. "These patients need more help than our staff our doctors can give them."

"In some cases, it might be as simple as getting them back on their medication, and they can return back to society," he said.

Another possibility being looked into is using some space for housing the patients in a yet-to-be constructed Juvenile Detention Center.

The county has been sitting on a $111,000 grant from the state's Public Safety Division that is set aside for building or setting up a modular unit to temporarily house juveniles.

Kellar said Pearl River has built a $235,000 juvenile facility in Picayune, but keeps some of its mental patients in a separate wing. That county currently accepts juveniles from Hancock County awaiting sentencing or trial.

But, Juvenile Court Judge Ann Williamson told supervisors she doesn't know how Pearl River is "getting away with that" since courts have rules all juveniles must be "out of sight and sound of adult prisoners."

And, Jeff Loftus, a planner with the Gulf Regional Planning Commission, told supervisors he would have to check to see if such an arrangement would be allowed under terms of the grant.

Loftus did urge supervisors to take action soon on using the grant funds for the juvenile facility or the money might have to be returned to the state.

The previous Board of Supervisors balked at finding a location for a modular holding unit or building a Juvenile detention Center because no county funds were available for its daily staffing and other operational costs.

But, recently Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said some of the operational costs might be offset if the county used part of the juvenile facility to hold prisoners for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The sheriff said the federal government would reimburse the county $75 per day per prisoner.

That practice might also be prohibited by the "out of sight and sound" laws regarding the housing of juveniles.

Supervisors said they would schedule a work session with Loftus, Peterson, Williamson and others regarding the juvenile situation.

Judge Williamson also told supervisors, "We're at our ultimate" capacity at the Youth Court Center on Court Street.

That building, constructed in 1976, now houses the Justice Courts and Youth Court.

"We need to put the Justice Court somewhere else," said Williamson.

Williamson said besides the courts, she needs office space and telephones for a court-appointed psychiatrists and a social worker. And, the director of Hope Haven, the shelter that Hancock County plans to open for abused and neglected children, needs an office there too.

She told supervisors she thought the building was designed to allow the addition of a second floor.

Supervisors told the judge they would dig up the design of the building to see if it were possible to add another floor, but added there were no funds to do so, anytime soon.

"I know that," said Williamson. "I just wanted to make my pitch."

Kim Stasny named Bay Assistant Superintendent

BY RICHARD MEEK

North Bay Elementary School Principal Kim Stasny was named Assistant Superintendent of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District on Thursday.

Stasny's appointment, which came at the recommendation of Superintendent Paul Tisdale, was approved 4-0 by the school board at a special meeting on Thursday night.

"I'm excited about the challenge," said Stasny, who has garnered national recognition by the Department of Education for her work at North Bay.

"I hate to leave (North Bay) but I am anxious to move on and do what I can at the next level."

Tisdale said he recommended Stasny after interviewing five of 13 applicants. Stasny, whose appointment is effective July 1, will replace Dr. Betty Jones, who is retiring at the end of the school year.

"It was a difficult decision," Tisdale said. "All of the applicants were eligible and qualified."

"(Stasny) has worked at the elementary and secondary levels, and has a proven record of excellence at North Bay," he added. "She has a lot of experience with technology and other intangibles that make for a good fit within the organizational district."

"I was looking for a relationship of cooperation and collaboration."

Stasny earned her bachelor's degree from Millsaps College and her Master's of Education from the University of Southern Mississippi. She will be awarded her doctorate's degree in May.

After teaching in her native Laurel and Mendenhall, Stasny taught for three years at Hancock North Central Elementary. For the past six years, she has been principal at North Bay.

"I think the biggest challenge facing our school district is meeting the changing needs of society," she said. "We must be preparing kids so they can be competitive in the job market."

"That starts in Kindergarten. It is a 13-year process."

Tisdale said Stasny's responsibilities will include curriculum, technology, the district's testing program, accreditation guidelines and some federal funding programs.

Pass school district to purchase new buses

BY TRACI BONNEY

Pass Christian students will get a chance to break in some new buses next year.

The school board voted unanimously Tuesday to authorize the purchase of six new Thomas Built buses, at a cost of $45,756 each. Superintendent Dr. Philip Terrell said the district will purchase the buses with sales tax revenues that have been earmarked for schools.

"These buses are not the lowest bid," Terrell said. "They're about $700 off the lowest one. But we have a good history with Thomas, and we believe these are the best buses we can afford, so we recommend that the board approve their purchase."

Marcia Garziano, financial officer for the district, said the buses cost about $5,000 less than state contract price.

The new buses look much like the Laidlaw buses now on the streets in other school districts — snub-nosed to allow greater visibility for drivers, longer, and able to carry more passengers.

Transportation director Glenn Williams said the new buses will carry 72 passengers instead of 60, as most of the district's buses now do.

"This will help alleviate the crowding problem we have on some of our more populated routes," he commented.

Williams also said the district will retire between two and four of the buses now in operation, and will keep the better ones available as spares for field trips or substitutes in case a bus has mechanical problems.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

On occasions the archives of The Sea Coast Echo is the only place where information on our past history can be found.

A point of reference is the origin of the St. Joseph's Chapel in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis.

Five years ago, Mrs. Betty Benvenuti was searching for information about the chapel, a mission of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

As history buffs of the area may recall, Our Lady of the Gulf's Church and St. Stanislaus burned about 1905 and a lot of the church records went up in flames.

In the March 21, 1896 issue of The Sea Coast Echo, Mrs. Benvenuti found just what she was searching for and that was a story on the church's dedication.

The story even lead church officials to a gold plate attached to the bell frame giving an inscription, "Donated by G.W. Dunbar's Sons, on the occasion of the First Communion of Susie Olga Dunbar, New Orleans, April 26, 1896."

Mrs. Benvenuti reports without The Echo's archives, she would have never found the church's complete history.

Anyway, on Tuesday, March 19, the feast of St. Joseph, St. Joseph's Chapel will be celebrating its 100th anniversary.

There will be a St. Joseph's Altar on the grounds from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will also be an open house in the chapel and tours. The general public is invited to the St. Joseph's Altar and tour of chapel.

I received a telephone call from a parent of a student at the Bay Middle School who was rather disturbed by the fact the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag is not recited before school begins.

She said her child reports the Pledge was recited at North Bay Elementary when he was a student, but not at the Bay Middle School.

It is hard to believe the Pledge of Allegiance is not part of every school's program in our nation.

Just a reminder, the annual American Cancer Society's Red Beans and Rice Cook-Off is set for Monday, March 25.

This year the event will be held at Our Lady of the Gulf's Community Center.

Janet McQueen, who along with Anne Andry, will once again be the co-chairmen of the fund raiser event.

McQueen reports there will be 30 teams vying for top honors this year.

This year some 220 pounds of Camellia Red Beans have been donated by the company. Bay St. Louis stores Jitney Jungle will donate rice while Winn-Dixie will donate bread for the event.

So, get set for beans and rice on Monday, March 25. Tickets will be for a donation of $6 per person, and will be available at the door, or from any participant.

We will be telling you more before the event.

Floor debate heats up on home health, waste bills

Submitted by Senator
Scottie R. Cuevas

Bills about home health, hazardous waste, and poultry contracts fueled Senate floor debate last week on a deadline to consider bills originating in the House of Representatives.

Wednesday and Thursday's debate was particularly heated and lengthy when a few bills were passed or defeated only to be brought back several times on parliamentary procedures for amendment and reconsideration.

The most heated debate occurred on House Bill 1074, which came to the floor on three consecutive days. The bill sought to establish a fee-for-services method for Medicaid reimbursement, which its supporters said would save the state money. However, the bill became the vehicle for limited expansion of home health services to hospitals.

By Thursday's adjournment, the bill was defeated and revived, then passed to allow hospitals with 100 or fewer beds to compete for 26 home health licenses now held by the State Department of Health. On Friday, the bill was held on a motion to reconsider which was upheld by a roll-call vote, thus killing the bill because Friday was the deadline to dispose of such motions.

MORE DEBATE

Another controversial bill — House Bill 1137 — originally sought to allow a Lowndes County plant to continue using petroleum waste as a fuel in its cement manufacturing. Amendments added opposition to a Jackson County wastewater facility and limits on future waste storage.

On Monday, the Senate debated the so-called "Chicken Bill" — House Bill 783 containing the Senate Agriculture Committee's proposal seeking to establish a state mediation and arbitration system to resolve disagreements between poultry processors and producers.

After lengthy debate, the committee's mediation/arbitration plan was defeated. As passed by the House, the bill now creates the Mississippi Poultry Producers Protection Act, which sets up requirements for poultry producers in contracting and dealing with poultry producers.

Among others passed by the Senate last week were bills to:

- Create a pre-paid college tuition program;
- Allow school board members to receive an annual salary instead of pay per meeting; and
- Require child care agencies to obtain felony conviction information on employees and applicants.

Also Thursday and Friday, numerous House spending bills were amended and approved, thus headed for conference to work out the differences unless the House agrees to the changes. Tuesday, March 19 is the Senate's deadline for floor action on spending bills origi-

DEADBEAT DAD BILL PASSES HOUSE

The State Legislature has chosen to make delinquent spousal child support a priority issue this year.

Spouses who do not pay child support will be penalized under this new law.

How the new law will work:

When a spouse is able to pay child support and does not then the spouse is held in contempt of the Chancery Court. At this point the delinquent child support payer is given a 90-day notice by certified mail to reconcile the outstanding overdue payments. This can be paid in full or in installments. If the delinquent spouse still refuses to pay, then the Department of Human Services will begin the process of suspending the licenses of the delinquent spouse.

Licenses that can be suspended include drivers licenses, alcohol permits, real estate licenses and licenses for doctors and lawyers.

In addition to suspending licenses, the name of the spouse that is in contempt of the court will be printed in the newspaper.

Thirty-five other states have this same law, including Louisiana, South Carolina, Arkansas, Florida and Texas.

The law has proven to be effective in encouraging the fulfillment of child support obligations. ***

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Student warns parents about drug Ritalin

Dear Editor,

Within the past year or so, a growing number of young people are abusing a once uncommon drug known as Ritalin. However, due to the increase of doctors prescribing the drug for children who have trouble focusing or for children with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, its availability is phenomenal.

The frightening part is that a shocking number of kids are using and/or selling this drug in our schools.

Ritalin has quietly yet quickly become today's drug of choice. It is abused equally by high school teens, and believe it not, 7th and 8th graders.

The frightening part is, parents are not aware that their innocent youngsters are susceptible to such behavior.

Most parents have not even heard of Ritalin. To my knowledge it is prescribed to people, mostly kids with ADHD, to help them to focus on their everyday tasks such as school work.

When used properly it can be a miracle worker. However, many kids with the prescription have been selling some or even all of their prescription to their peers.

It is most commonly crushed to a fine powder and then snorted through one's nose in order to give a stimulating rush, described as something similar to speed.

It is also abused by many athletes to give them an extra adrenaline-type edge before competition. This drug is very dangerous because of the effects it has on one's cardiovascular system.

Parents need to be made aware of the changing culture; kids as young as 12 and 13 are nowadays commonly experimenting with cigarettes, alcohol, Ritalin and marijuana.

This sounds unbelievable, but is it worth the risk? Schools are just now identifying the problem, and parents also need to be made aware and take whatever necessary steps to prevent an unfortunate loss.

Parents must talk to and convince their children of the dangers of drugs, including Ritalin, before someone else does otherwise, because younger and younger kids are experimenting and abusing drugs.

Sincerely
Richard Soldine
Waveland

Newcomer not for or against zoning, but . . .

To the Editor:

I was really amazed at some of the misguided people who wrote against zoning.

I'm a newcomer here in Bay St. Louis. I can neither endorse nor am I against the present zone plan. I am sure there are controversial issues, but one thing about which I am positive — zoning is a must.

Your letter writer, complaining about government involvement, probably doesn't own a $100,000 house, but if he did, I bet he'd holler if I came and raised pigs or chickens next door. And the real estate agent (wonder where he got his license?), saying zoning "decreases" land values; unbelievable!

Can you expect someone to move into Hancock County, build a $100,000 house, even a $25,000 house, or a church, not knowing if tomorrow our previous letter writer might show up with a bus, house trailer or pig farm next door? Of course not.

And the former supervisor railing against "government control" — living in the dark ages — against development. (How did he get elected?)

Zoning is essential for orderly development and growth.

Respectfully,
Charles E. Ray
Bay St. Louis

Pearlington residents want "cost-effective" sewerage

To the Editor:

We, a group of Pearlington residents, have some questions we would like answered and some information you might find interesting.

At their Dec. 15, 1995 meeting, the five members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors informed us that they answer to no one. They insinuated that they are the absolute governing power for Hancock County. If this is true, we want to know who holds them accountable for their actions.

Our primary concern has to do with Hancock County's implementation of new sewerage systems that are environmentally safe and cost effective.

We too would like to see such a system in operation. The problem is that the supervisors want to give sole control of the project to Hancock County Waste Water District No. 1.

This county entity also answers to one one, not even the board of supervisors.

At the Dec. 15 meeting, an engineer representing Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1 repeatedly used the words "cost effective" when referring to a project in the Shoreline Park area for which they received a federal grant.

We want to know why the company has split the Shoreline Park project into two phases.

Now they want to annex Pearlington with Shoreline Park's second phase and apply for $10 million more in federal grants.

Hancock County Wastewater gave the residents of Pearlington a 1995 revenue report which shows the company losing $6.83 per month for every customer. How can a company remain operating when it is losing 19.5 percent a month?

Hancock County Wastewater's plan is to put a submersible grinder pump in front of every house. The raw sewerage will be ground and pumped to a lagoon-type system to be treated.

This "cost effective" system will cost Pearlington residents $35 a month and does not include water.

Below is a comparison of monthly sewerage costs for surrounding areas.

Bay St. Louis, $12 plus $3.65 Waveland, $18 plus $3.50 Picayune, 9,000 gal. water $9.61, sewerage $15.25

Slidell, $26 water allotment, sewerage and garbage pickup New Orleans, $22 water and sewerage

When we question the board of supervisors or Wastewater, the answer is either, "I don't know" or "cost effective."

Compared to the sewerage and water cost for surrounding areas, the proposed system only seems costly to us.

We do not think it is fair to have this project forced upon us when we know of more efficient and less costly systems.

At the public hearing Dec. 15 our group was allowed to speak, but we were cut off mid-sentence and our questions were not answered. Nothing was resolved.

We advocate an operative sewerage and water system, however, we want a say in the type of system implemented and feel a public vote should be held.

Sincerely,
Patrice St. Clair and 76 concerned residents of Pearlington

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Little knowing that her son would die an untimely death just under three years, a loving mother penned him a special letter on the occasion of his high school graduation.

"My Dear, Dear Son, there are many things that will probably go unsaid at this turning point in your life. However, one feeling that will be both spoken and unspoken is the pride that you have continually given me in you. Thank you for being the kind, loving, gentle man that you are.

"We have come through some very trying times in the past 20 years. I know that I have made many mistakes that will never be rectified. For those, forgive me. Some of those mistakes made our bond stronger than ever. Thanks for sticking by me.

"Life is a struggle for everyone. You will not be an exception to that rule. However, if you set your goal and do your very best to reach that goal, you will succeed in life. Belief and trust in God will make your struggle only as much as you can handle. Always keep the faith!

"You laugh at me and say that I embarrass you when I talk of not being able to handle your graduating. It's hard for me to think of life without you right here with me all of the time. I realize that I must let go in order for you to grow fully. You may never understand what I'm feeling now. Just know that it is very, very real.

Talk to your children

"My greatest wish for you is a life of peace, safety and comfort. Always remember, whatever may happen in life, I'll be there for you no matter what. God bless you with his peace and love. Always, Mom."

This letter, dated May 28, 1994, fell out of Kevin White's belonging as his mother Cynthia went through them a month after his death. Poignant, prophetic, powerful, it shook her profoundly and forced her to discuss it.

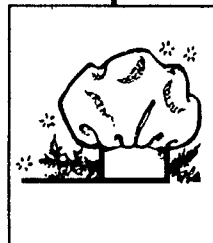

Everything fit what people said about him, especially "for being the kind, loving, gentle man that you are."

Perhaps the conclusion is a bit eerie: "My greatest wish for you is a life of peace, safety and comfort." Eerie is the thought: maybe this could not be realized here on earth.

It brought back to Cynthia's mind the thrice-ecce call to her best friend Sharon at 5:07 a.m. at approximately time of Kevin's death. Sharon's caller ID displayed Cynthia's number, but no one from Cynthia's house had called at that time.

Parents, talk to your children. Though the reasons are myriad and as varied as the fauna and flora around you, the root reason is bonding by the personal attention, sharing, concern, pride, affection, appreciation and love between you.

It is disconcertingly true that unruly and sometimes outright bad children at times emerge from families with caring, desperately trying parents. Credit

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Steak Diane

The mark of a good, and gourmet-inclined cook, I think, shows itself not so much in fussy, fancy and expensive concoctions as it does in presentation of less costly dishes made special through creative touches and use of flavor combinations.

Thrifty cooks have long "tamed" the toughness of less expensive cuts of beef, for example, by use of marinades to enhance flavor and make the meat more tender, and have used wines and broths for braising the less tender cuts. And, these thrifty cooks count on mounds of rice to extend the servings of meat.

A tasty example is that classic steak dish, Steak Diane, a fine and tender steak. Today, I shall make this dish from that good old standby cut, top round steak, properly tenderized and accented, without running up the grocery bill!

I usually prefer to tenderize steaks and other cuts of beef by marinating them in olive oil, Burgundy wine and black peppercorns or coarsely ground black pepper. If you raid the brandy bottle for generous splashes — for the beef, not for you — and add a touch of fresh mushrooms and/or tomatoes, you've a dish fit for many an occasion. Here's:

SKINFLINT GOURMET'S STEAK DIANE

1½ to 2 lbs. top round steak, an inch thick (no thicker for this dish)

1/2 cup butter (or substitute margarine)

1/4 cup brandy (optional)

1/2 cup chopped green

onions, with tops

1 tsp. each Tabasco and Worcestershire sauce, less if you prefer a milder taste

Dash of black pepper; salt optional

Cut the round steak into six serving portions, and pound well with a mallet or the rim of a saucer until approximately half an inch thick. (At this point, you may wish to marinate the steaks in the red wine and oil for an hour or more, as I do; or you may wish to use unseasoned meat tenderizer, according to directions).

Whichever method you use — when you're ready to proceed, melt three tablespoons of the butter over medium high heat in a large, heavy skillet (such as my trusty cast iron one). As soon as the butter's bubbly, sear the steaks quickly on one side, then the other, just a minute or so per side, for me, at least.

Lower the heat, splash the brandy over, along with the hot sauce, onions and pepper, and if you must, cook the steaks a bit longer, to your taste. Remove the steaks from the skillet, and keep them warm while you add the remainder of the butter to the sauce in the pan, and stir together.

When the butter has melted into the sauce, pour sauce over the steaks and serve with rice or potatoes as you wish; it's rice at my house. If you want to go a bit further, add cut up tomatoes and fresh mushrooms as you're cooking the dish. (Six servings) o'clock was largely attended by people from all parts of the Bay, and in addition the convent and college pupils attended in a body, and it was they who furnished the choir music, including the college orchestra.

Very Rev. Father LeDuc celebrated mass, and in a most fitting manner spoke of the patron saint of the new church. The cornerstone has not been placed, but it is intended to be in position some time during May, when in the presence of high officials of the faith, the ceremonies will be conducted.

St. Joseph's Chapel was built through the efforts of Rev. Father LeDuc and Father Alphonse.

The chapel was built for the convenience of Catholics of that vicinity, a parish which is of a considerable number and with good promise for a constant and rapid increase.

The story on the blessing of the chapel and its bell appeared in the Saturday, May 18, 1896, edition as follows:

After the 1947 hurricane, the chapel's size was doubled in keeping with the same design.

The blessing of St. Joseph's Chapel and its bell took place Sunday afternoon. Rt. Rev. Bishop Heslin officiating and assisted by Revs. Father LeDuc and Father Alphonse. The two ceremonies were very impressive, and the remarks on the occasion made by the bishop were both instructive and interesting.

The bell, weighing nearly two hundred pounds, is one of magnificent proportions and make, and is the donation of generous people who are good friends in many ways to the people of Bay St. Louis.

On a gold plate attached to the bell frame is the following inscription: "Donated by G. W. Dunbar's Sons, on the occasion of the first communion of Susie Olga Dunbar, New Orleans, April 26, 1886."

The sponsors were Miss Susie Dunbar and Mrs. Frank Dunbar Jr.

NARFE celebrates

The Buccaneer Chapter 1729, NARFE celebrated the National organizations 75th birthday at its February meeting. Club president Mary Sindors, right, and secretary Jack Hasling display proclamations by Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre and Waveland Mayor John Mason declaring Feb. 19, as National Association of Retired Federal Employees Day.

Jail

adopted new budgets by July 1, but they allocate monies the same as the counties, by Oct. 1.

Waveland Mayor John Mason said an increase was not provided for in this year's operating budget, but he would be glad to meet with supervisors to discuss the situation.

Supervisors will invite Mason, Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre, and the police chiefs of the two cities in to talk with them during a workshop session.

Contacted Friday, Peterson said he had already talked to the mayors about his intentions, and they didn't seem to think the 50 percent increase was unreasonable.

"Harrison County is currently charging its cities $20 per day to care for their prisoners," said Peterson. "I think our proposed $15 a day is justified in light of the fact that we house them, feed them, and guard them."

The sheriff said an average

80 persons per month are kept in the county jail for Bay St. Louis, while he keeps about 50 a month for Waveland.

In other business at their March 13 meeting, supervisors let a four-year contract for $420,000 to Mississippi Mosquito Control of Waveland to handle the county's pesky mosquito problems.

The firm provides monitoring, larvae control, ground and aerial spray throughout the county in efforts to control the mosquito situation. It previously had a three-year contract with the county, and manager Wayne Machado said the $105,000 charge represented no increase from the previous contract.

Board Attorney Gerald Gex told supervisors he was awaiting a ruling from the state Attorney General's office on whether voters can call for a referendum on a proposed countywide zoning ordinance. A group calling itself the Concerned Citizens of Hancock County has been collecting signatures of registered voters in an effort to seek a vote on the proposal.

The proposed zoning regulations were recently subjected to public comment at four public hearings, and the Hancock County Planning Commission is expected to present a final version to supervisors by April 15.

Supervisors also approved the hiring of Janet Dudding, a certified public accountant, to take over for County Controller Patty Greer when she goes out on maternity leave.

Dudding will be paid at a rate of $20 an hour, and her contract is for "four to six weeks."

Chancery Court Clerk Tim Kellar told supervisors he will hire Kim Bonano soon to begin sending out delinquent tax notices to property owners.

Under the law, notices must be sent out 90 to 180 days prior to the August land auction of delinquent properties.

Kellar said the funds to hire Bonano would come out of his budget, and she would be paid $5 an hour for her services.

Supervisors approved District 1 Supervisor Jeep Ladner's appointment of Waveland Fire Chief David Garcia to a four-year term on the Parks and Recreation Commission. He replaces Eldon Gilly.

Supervisors also let a $2,200 one-time contract to Mi Co of Diamondhead to clean the venting system at the county courthouse.

Board President Philip Moran, who is sensitive to cigarette smoke, said the county might want to try a smoking and chewing tobacco ban in all county buildings.

Otherwise, the county would have spent money needlessly on the courthouse system, he said.

Mi Co has offered to clean vents at the other county buildings for $11,000.

Moran's suggestion is expected to meet opposition from Circuit Court Clerk Pam Metzler and Sheriff Peterson, both of whom smoke.

Metzler said there's no separate smoking room for jurors in the courthouse, and they would be forced to go outside to smoke during inclement weather.

Peterson said the ban in county jails might cause some security problems.

Strip

that a strip joint was coming to the county.

All three law enforcement officials said at that news conference they were going to enforce all laws regulating prostitution, B-drinking, drugs and other similar crimes, but current laws did not give them the power to stop strip joints from operating in the county.

Peterson said he also expected more problems to develop from massage parlors, escort services and strip clubs wanting to locate here, since the county does not have a comprehensive zoning ordinance.

Pass

"Both projects are great assets for the city, I think," Larosa said. He estimated the cost at around $500,000 for each building.

"We don't have a date for dedicating the bridge and the two buildings yet, but we hope to have everything finalized within the next 30 to 60 days. We'll probably set the dedication for sometime in the spring, after the weather warms up some more," he concluded.

Little League registration

Waveland Little League set late registration for Tuesday, March 19 from 6-8 p.m. at Elwood Bourgeois Park.

Coleman coalition meet

Property owners, neighbors, friends and tenants with an interest in the renewal of Coleman Avenue, Waveland's historic main street, are invited to attend an organizational meeting Wednesday, March 27 at 6 p.m., City Hall Annex, Coleman Avenue.

A volunteer effort to renew Coleman Avenue is not new, but this time the volunteers will be provided assistance from the Mississippi Downtown Development Association when their organization is formed.

The city renewed its MDDA membership when there was strong interest in building a partnership for redevelopment of the Coleman Avenue neighborhood.

"Coleman Avenue is the heart of Waveland. Coleman may never return to the traditional main street role, but it will always be our city center. The administration wants to participate with citizens to plan a renewal of Coleman, diversifying our interests, making new plans for a new century," said Mayor Mason.

"We hope this core group will grow and be joined by Waveland's many interested and energetic residents and friends to be a positive influence on our future."

Anyone interested in coaching a team is asked to show up between the times listed.

Domestic violence counseling

The Gulf Coast Women's Center will provide counseling and outreach services for victims of domestic violence and sexual assault on Wednesday, 10 a.m.-noon at the Family Youth Court/Justice Court.

For information, contact Gwendolyn L. Beck at 1-800-800-1396.

A representative will be in Bay St. Louis March 12 and March 26.

killed while she walked along Lakeshore Road about 7:45 p.m. Zoerner later turned himself in to the Hancock County Sheriff.

nating in the House. The same deadline exists in the House for Senate spending bills.

We haven't received an official update about the state budget situation since March 4, but continue to be mindful that our resources are very limited for Fiscal Year 1997 and want great care to be taken in making final decisions in the spending process.

BREW PUBS TO WAIT

Brewpubs — small beer-brewing businesses — will have to wait until 1997 to get a new hearing on becoming a legal enterprise in Mississippi. The bill was defeated once, then brought up again and defeated again.

Of the bills introduced as crime-fighting measures, only a few have survived. Among them are Senate Bill 2572 to set up a pilot program on Teen Court programs (to be considered in a conference committee), House Bill 1040 to create the felony offense of auto theft and order restitution; to provide funds for two new juvenile prisons; Senate Bill 2571, The Mississippi Steet Gang Act; and Senate Bill 2475 to increase the number of assistant district attorneys.

One of the Senate's highest-profile bills surviving House scrutiny last week was Senate Bill 2070 which would allow state licenses to be revoked from persons who fail to pay court-ordered child support. The bill was amended in the House and will return to the Senate for approval of changes. If the Senate does not agree, the bill will head for conference. If the Senate agrees, the bill will head for signing by the Governor.

Also last week, the Senate amended House Bill 1123, which restricted 12 year olds from operating watercrafts to provide that they as well as all persons born after June 30, 1980 be required to take a course in watercraft operations. It is headed for a conference committee.

Lt. Gov. Ronnie Musgrove spent a few minutes at the Capitol last week. He dropped in on Tuesday to say hello and to thank everyone for their prayers and expressions of concern after his automobile accident in February. His driver, Trooper Michael Wilkie, also stopped by to say thanks.

TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

Art In Bloom schedule announced

Professionals and novices, interior and exterior designers, garden club members and school students, movers and shakers, landscapers, gardeners, florists and artists — everyone's getting into the act at this year's spring tribute to flowers — Art In Bloom.

Sponsored by the New Orleans Museum of Art and the Garden Study Club of New Orleans, Art In Bloom is a five-day floral extravaganza highlighted by a series of special events. These include an elaborate Patron and Preview Party, lectures and demonstrations by noted floral historians and designers, a luncheon with a spring fashion preview sponsored by Maison Blanche, informal flower arranging demonstrations and spectacular displays of floral arrangements and tablescapes.

Slated for March 20-24, Art In Bloom features one-of-a-kind floral arrangements accenting artworks in NOMA's newest exhibition, "Caribbean Visions: Contemporary Painting and Sculpture, as well as the permanent collection.

Sixteen area garden clubs will compete in a variety of categories with judging provided by professional flower show judges.

In the Movers and Shakers category several well-known personalities, including WWL news anchor Angela Hill, restaurateurs Cindy and Lally Brennan, and the Audubon Institute's Ron Forman and his wife Sally, will participate with their own creations.

Among the 18 artists whose floral designs will be on display are children's book illustrator Berthe Amoss, Northshore artist Jaime Meeks, portrait artist Barbara Burk, ceramicist Evelyn Jordan and abstract artist Julie Robinson.

The artists will arrange floral designs that offer interpretations of selected artworks currently on display in MOMA's galleries.

Thirteen area schools will participate in the Young Artists category, creating original artwork inspired by flowers. Working with art teachers, participating classes will design their own group art project using their choice of media with flowers as the central theme. Among the schools are Audubon Montessori, St. Pius X, Christ Episcopal (Covington), Isidore Newman School and Gordon Elementary.

Professional floral designers from throughout the Greater New Orleans area will also be featured in the show along with professional exterior designers such as John Harris, head gardener for Longue Vue Gardens, landscape designers Chris Fischer, Beverly Katz and Shannon Evans, and horticulturist Annie Zipkin.

Providing tablescapes from the exotic to the elegant for the event are several area businesses, including Cason Gallery, Creative Native, Maison Blanche, The Secret Garden and Henderson Interiors.

In addition, the Greater New Orleans Bonsai Society and Ikebana International New Orleans Chapter 97 will present several displays to accent NOMA's Asian and Oceanic galleries on the third floor.

Art In Bloom benefits the educational projects of the New Orleans Museum of Art and the charitable projects of The Garden Study Club of New Orleans (a member of the Garden Club of America, which include the New Orleans Botanical Garden in City Park, Longue Vue Gardens, the NOMA Flower Fund, and the gardens of the historic Beauregard House and Lazarus House.

Heading the coordination of this year's event are chairmen Mrs. Wilton E. Bland III (Julia) and Mrs. Nathan P. Phillips, Jr. (Dee). For tickets or information, call the museum at 488-2631, ext. 316.

Circus coming to town

Celebrating the 63rd annual tour under the same original owner-management family, the King Royal Bros. big four-ring circus will unfold its gigantic tented dome in Bay St. Louis Friday, March 29 at 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. under the sponsorship of Bay-Waveland Elks Lodge 2776 at the Hancock County Fairgrounds.

The 1996 edition of America's favorite tented extravaganza will feature specialty acts galore from the all-hemispheric greatness of the realm of circus stars the world over.

From the continents of Asia and Europe comes Cpt. Whitey Hungerford and his mixed ar-na of Royal Bengal tigers and jungle-bred African lions.

Also from these far off places come more than 100 exotic beasts and birds, including elephants, fabulous felines of mixed variety, jungle birds with plumage of unbelievable luster and sheen, and much more.

From our friendly neighbors to the south — a display of llamas, tapirs and a score of cute little loveables will be featured in the King Royal Bros. Kiddie Petting Zoo, plus "Princess Tanzania" King Royal Bros. own baby hippopotamus orphaned at birth and bottle-raised at the King Royal Bros. Texas ranch.

Acrobats, jugglers, clowns, aerialists and high wire artists have always been paramount with the show and will return this year.

Rounding out the 100-minute four-ring spectacular and defying gravity at dizzying heights in the very peaks of the giant tent, and without the aid of a net or safety device of any nature, the "Sensational Stanolians," on their eagerly awaited return to America following three highly acclaimed tours of the European and Asian continents, will headline the gigantic aerial contingency with their stunning array of aerial agility.

Advance reduced price tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from the sponsor, or call 467-2100 or 466-3929 for information.

8A-THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, MARCH 17, 1996

Beef producers form new organization

The beef industry is moving into the next century with a unified, positive and profitable focus through the recently-formed National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), which began operation Feb. 1.

The NCBA is the result of a merger between the former National Live Stock and Meat Board and National Cattlemen's Association and is a consumer-focused, producer-directed organization representing all segments of the industry.

As important "stakeholders" in the new organization, Hancock County beef producers who pay for the checkoff will continue to invest in programs that work to increase demand for beef through the national beef checkoff. The Mississippi Cattle Industry Board will continue to implement programs on behalf of beef producers in Mississippi, whole representing them on NCBA's checkoff board.

To ensure a powerful future, one aspect of NCBA's mission is to improve the industry's profiability, says John Lacey, NCBA's first president and a cattleman from Paso Robles, Calif.

"If we can begin now to improve quality and consistency and can boost demand through promotion and information programs, we can regain profitability more quickly," Lacey explained.

Longer-term, the said, NCBA will work to establish beef as the world standard for food quality and safety, instill confidence in beef as wholesome and healthful, improve exports and increase domestic market share.

Lacey assures producers that they will have an active role in the new organization and that everyone will be involved in positive bridge-building.

"Now is the time to jump on board and make our unified organization work for the good of all of us," he said.

"All producers in Mississippi are represented through the Mississippi Cattle Industry Board on NCBA's checkoff board, and members of the state cattlemen's association or a breed affiliate also are represented on the dues board. So every producer's voice can be heard."

Mei Mei Newsome, director, promotions and information for the Mississippi Cattle Industry Board, said, "The new structure allows all of us with the industry to work together on common goals. It's time to mend fences and focus all our efforts on rebuilding profitability and beef industry market share."

According to Newsome, the structure of the new organization will be characterized by a minimum of bureaucracy; a "center" orientation with that gives authority, responsibility and accountability to teams within each center; clarity of staff responsibilities; and a "listen and respond" orientation to all audiences.

This "listen and respond" orientation will enable Hancock County beef producers to work with industry leaders to strengthen demand for beef and improve the climate in which cattle and beef producers must operate.

"We are controlling our own future," said Newsome. "And that's good news for all cattle and beef producers."

Plan today for tomorrow

Did you know that if you don't have a valid will or trust, a state's intestacy law will dictate how your estate is distributed?

People avoid completing estate plans for a variety of reasons. For some, the thought of death is uncomfortable. If you are one of these people, which makes you more uncomfortable: talking about death, or the realization that your assets may not be distributed to whom you would choose nor at the time you would choose?

Other people believe they don't have enough assets to warrant an estate plan. However, an inventory of assets and property might surprise these people. Often, there is forgotten property, antiques, jewelry and more. Even if there are no forgotten assets, simply adding them up can be eye-opening.

Whether you have a lot or a little, and even if it makes you uncomfortable, you should have a written estate plan. It's one way to ensure that your estate will go to the beneficiaries you intend at the time you desire.

Because estate laws differ from state to state, it's important to consult an attorney who understands your state's laws. The cost of having a complete estate plan drafted is relatively insignificant compared to its possible tax savings.

When it comes to the specifics of your estate plan, here are some things you should consider:

If you would like to leave all or part of your estate to your surviving spouse, you should know there may be tax ramifications. Your attorney can advise you of tax consequences and suggest alternatives. This will ensure that your final decision takes full advantage of tax laws without compromising your overall intentions.

If you have minor children, you have a need for a will. A will can provide a specific financial plan for your children while ensuring they are raised by the guardian of your choice.

If the court has to administer these assets for the benefit of your children, it may be costly, and the assets may not be handled the way you would desire. In addition, if you die without a will, the state steps in and appoints a guardian, often the nearest relative. Would you like this decision to be made by the state?

Another consideration in estate planning is what happens to your estate should all your beneficiaries die before you. Under many state laws, if this happens, the property can revert to the state — certainly another reason to plan.

Many things can be accomplished by an estate plan. However simple or detailed you choose to make it, a completed plan can allow your estate to be distributed as you truly desire.

Free guides, videotapes, Internet info available to students and parents

When it comes to questions about financial aid for college, what you don't know can be costly. Fortunately, there are a number of guides and other useful resources available through Sallie Mae that are free for the asking.

Paying for College. This 20-page brochure provides a handy overview of the college financial aid process. It includes a step-by-step roadmap on applying for aid, advice on saving for college, and useful tips on coping with tuition and other college costs. For a free copy, call 1-800-806-3681.

Borrowing for College. This billfold-sized booklet offers helpful guidance on federal loan programs, including information on annual borrowing limits, interest rates and other loan terms. The guide also counsels borrowers on how to shop for lenders and lists lenders form each state that offer borrowers cheaper student loans. Call 1-800-891-4595 for a free copy.

"Affording Higher Education" Video Program. This half-hour videotape, hosted by NBC "DATELINE" consumer reporter Lea Thompson, offers parents an overview on meeting the challenge of paying for higher education.

It includes interviews with and advice from educators, financial aid administrators, financial planners and families with children in college. The videotape is free (though there is a $6 postage and handling fee) and can be ordered through the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NAASP) by calling 1-800-253-7746 or by writing to the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP) at 1615 Duke Street, Alexandria, VA 22314.

"Planning and Saving for College" Video Series. This series of three 15-minute video programs offers advice to parents and children on readying themselves for college at various stages of their lives.

The first program, "Your Child's Early Years," focuses on helping parents of young children plan and save for higher education and provides long-term investment strategies. The second program, "Your Child's Middle School Year," targets middle-school children and their parents, emphasizing academic and financial planning, with an eye on shorter-term savings strategies.

And the third program, "Your Child's High School Years," addresses short-term savings strategies for families of high school students and examines financial aid alternatives.

The first two programs are available on one videotape from NAESP at the above address, and the second and third programs are available on a single tape from NAESP by calling the above number. Again, the tapes are free, except for a $6 postage and handling fee.

Internet. Students and their parents with access to the World Wide Web will find Sallie Mae's site on the Internet perhaps the most comprehensive source of free information on college financing.

The web site features interactive calculators to help families easily estimate the cost of college, savings goals or monthly loan payments as well as tips on reducing borrowing costs.

Students who use lenders that partner with Sallie Mae, for example, can reduce their monthly interest rate by as much as 2.25 percent by establishing good repayment habits. Sallie Mae's web site address is: <http://www.salliemae.com>.

Federally chartered and stockholder-owned (NYSE), Sallie Mae is the nation's leading source of financing for higher education.

PULSE announces workshops for developing effective electronic banking strategies

PULSE EFT Association announces a new, innovative one-step training program designed to assist financial institutions in planning, analyzing and implementing effective EFT strategies.

"Developing Effective EFT Programs" is a comprehensive two-day workshop designed to educate PULSE members in:

- evaluating the effectiveness of their current EFT strategies and programs,
- choosing new or expanded strategies and establishing goals and objectives, and
- planning, implementing, managing, marketing, and measuring an effective EFT program

The workshops represent a new program in PULSE's ongoing effort to provide outstanding education in electronic banking for its more than 1,700 member institutions.

"Because ATMs, debit cards and other electronic banking products and services have become essential offerings for financial institutions, it is increasingly important that members understand how to manage and market EFT products to achieve maximum effectiveness and profitability," explains Mary Brown, vice president and director of marketing for PULSE EFT Association.

Seven workshops have been scheduled for 1996, starting March 27 and 28 in Albuquerque. Other workshops will be held in Dallas on April 1 and 2, in New Orleans on April 16 and 17, in Austin on May 15 and 16, in Denver on June 5 and 6, in Houston on July 17 and 18, and in Little Rock, Ark. on July 30 and 31.

The new program assists financial institutions in planning, analyzing and implementing successful EFT strategies. Offered throughout PULSE's seven-state region, the program includes a two-volume, comprehensive workbook that will serve as a valuable guide for financial institutions. The workshop explains how to effectively use the workbook in developing EFT strategies and it details how to measure, track and evaluate the performance of EFT programs against selected goals and objectives.

PULSE launched the electronic banking seminar and workbook to provide financial institutions with a complete resource for EFT information and strategies.

Hugh Barrett, managing director of The Strategic Alliance Group and former chairman of the board of PULSE EFT Association, will provide attendees with information to help plan and implement a more effective EFT program.

A legal and regulatory overview will be presented by David Schneider, Partner with Fulbright & Jaworski and legal counsel to PULSE.

Topics to be discussed include Regulation E, the Americans With Disabilities Act, Regulation CC, ATM Liabilities Issues and other topics pertaining to electronic banking services.

In addition, marketing expert Dale Terry, president of the Dallas-based Genesis Group, will be on hand to provide attendees with marketing ideas on how to create an ATM marketing promotion to increase fee income and generate ATM usage.

Deloitte & Touche executives Bill Kacal and Kathie Floyd will review the results of their recently completed study, "Considerations for Developing the Most Effective EFT Strategies for Your Institution," which identifies creative and unique EFT programs employed by financial institutions. Long-time experts on community banking strategies, they will highlight successful EFT strategies that could help generate more revenue in a financial institution's ATM/debit card program.

PULSE is a not-for-profit, shared regional electronic funds transfer network operating in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, New Mexico, Colorado and Mississippi. PULSE is the largest shared regional electronic funds transfer association in the nation in terms of members. The network features more than 13,450 ATMs and 35,400 PULSE PAY point-of-sale terminals.

Tenneco Energy recognized for environmental efforts

Tenneco Energy has been honored by the Mississippi Wildlife Federation for its environmental and conservation efforts in 1995. The affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation presented the company with its Special Merit Award in recognition of its environmental stewardship at its annual banquet last month in Jackson.

Jim Pemberton, director of Tenneco Energy's Environmental, Health, Safety & Technology Services, accepted the award on behalf of the company.

"This award is a tribute to our employees in Mississippi and their commitment to the company's vision of world class environmental service and conservation," Pemberton said.

The award recognizes Tenneco Energy for three projects the company completed in Mississippi in 1995.

• Tenneco Energy donated 680 feet of pipe, valued at approximately $10,000 for use as water control piping in the Bagley Bottoms Waterfowl Habitat area in northern Mississippi.

The partners in this project included the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, and Ducks Unlimited.

• While replacing two high pressure natural gas pipelines near Petal, Tenneco Energy employees discovered a gopher tortoise burrow adjacent to the right-of-way.

Working with the Mississippi Natural Heritage Program and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the employees fenced off the area to ensure that construction work would not disturb the habitat.

• Tenneco Energy also created a unique computer program, called the TEAM Test (Tenneco Environmental Achievement Mission), to educate employees on how they can contribute to environmental conservation on and off the job. In 1995, 98 percent of company employees successfully completed the PC-based TEAM test.

Tenneco Energy operates 1,622 miles of pipeline and 10 compressor stations in Mississippi.

Tenneco Energy, headquartered in Houston, is an integrated energy company with operations in natural gas transportation and marketing; electrical power generation and development; pipeline construction and engineering services; and oil and gas exploration, production and financing. In the United States, the company transports or markets more than 3.3 trillion cubic feet of gas annually, approximately 16 percent of total U.S. consumption. The company is also expanding into international markets in Australia, Latin America, Central Europe and East Asia.

Tenneco Energy is an operating division of Tenneco (NYSE:TEN), a major diversified industrial corporation with 1995 sales of $8.9 billion. The company's other major business interests include packaging (Tenneco Packaging), automotive parts (Tenneco Automotive), and ship design, construction and repair (Newport News Shipbuilding).

Anti-litter program honored

The Mississippi Department of Transportation's (MDOT) Anti-Litter Program earned first place in the 1995 National Keep America Beautiful/Federal Highway Administration's annual awards program.

MDOT accepted the award during the Keep America Beautiful annual meeting in Washington, D.C. According to the awards program officials, MDOT placed first due to its Anti-Litter School Educational Program, which targets children in grades K-3rd and the Adopt-A-Highway and Adopt-A-Interchange programs. Also included were the programs conducted by People Against Litter, which is funded in part by MDOT.

"This is the third consecutive year MDOT has received national recognition for its anti-litter programs," MDOT executive director Robert L. Robinson said in a recent interview.

"The first two awards were for second place. I am extremely proud of this year's first place award."

Robinson said the recognition was due to the dedication and hard work of MDOT's employees who execute the anti-litter programs.

Unprecedented recommendations on high school reform

"Together, Carnegie and NASSP have unleashed a powerful tool for reform of the American high school that will reach into every high school in the nation," said Dr. Timothy J. Dyer, National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) executive director, in announcing sweeping, comprehensive and innovative reform recommendations that will result in unprecedented changes in the nation's high schools.

These recommendations are the outcome of more than two years' deliberations by The Commission on the Restructuring of the American High School. The Commission was born of a partnership of NASSP and The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

The concise 114-page report entitled, Breaking Ranks: Changing An American Institution, focuses on revitalizing education for all young people and points to what is needed for the high school of the 21st century.

The report is dedicated to Dr. Ernest Boyer, who, as president of The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, until his recent death, provided leadership, vision and inspiration for the Commission's work.

Each of the more than 80 recommendations is written with the viewpoint of practitioners — those involved in the education of America's youth on a daily basis. The Commission's members were principals, teachers and students representing public and private school in cities, suburbs and rural areas nationwide.

Breaking Ranks is directed at all high schools, whether in the public or private arena. The release of the report to more than 5,000 principals and other school administrators took place at the NASSP's 80th Annual Convention at the Moscone Convention Center in San Francisco.

"Principals are clearly in the leadership position needed to identify what is most essential and to provide the guidance needed to institute these systemic reforms successfully. NASSP will be the professional organization to lead the effort and assist them in doing so," Dyer said.

As a vehicle to implement the reforms, NASSP has formed the National Alliance of High Schools (NAHS) to offer school-based programs, consulting services and technical assistance.

"Those who have sat in the principal's office have the best overview of what it takes to make high schools better," the report says. Breaking Ranks, "draws strength and authority from the fact that it arises from the inside and does not descend on high schools from the outside."

Recommendations encompass the scope of programs and activities affecting high school students, including socialization, basic skills, links to higher education, school leadership, the classroom and business-school partnerships:

- providing each student with a Personal Progress Plan (PPP) for individualized learning goals;

- teaching and modeling ethics and values considered essential in a democratic and civil society;

- providing each student with a Personal Adult Advocate (PAA) to help him or her personalize the educational experience;

- permitting employers to return to high school graduates in entry-level jobs who fail to reach performance standards;

- changing the Carnegie unit equating seat time with learning accomplished;

- scheduling school year-round, focusing on teacher development

- identifying a mandatory core curriculum emphasizing literature, language, math, social studies, science and the arts;

- using technology as an integral tool in the classroom;

- limiting teachers to no more than 90 students for whom they will be responsible, and limiting school size to units of not more than 600 to create a more personal environment;

- zero tolerance on drugs and weapons.

"These recommendations are appropriate and applicable whether you are a private school, a public school, a voucher, charter, or any other type of school organization the local community chooses. Anyone who is seriously interested in the welfare of youth and their preparation for a productive and happy life following adolescence and graduation from high school will be interested in these reforms," Dyer said.

Breaking Ranks represents what the commissioners concluded are the best methods to ensure that every student receives a complete and high quality education and, that in every element of the delivery of education, the student's needs come first. The graphic design of the report features photographs of high school students from Edmund Burke School in Washington, DC, and Hylton High School in Woodbridge, Va.

Shabazz leads Bay High past Rock-a-chaws, 8-3

BY RICHARD MEEK

Perhaps Bay High's unnamed baseball field should carry the moniker of "Wali World" after Tiger standout Wali Shabazz's performance Friday night.

Shabazz baffled St. Stanislaus with his arm and riddled the Rocks with his bat in an 8-2 victory at Bay High, the Tigers' third in a row after two consecutive losses to open District 7, 4A play. Bay High is 6-5, 2-2.

"We were not happy after our first two (district) losses to Oak Grove and Petal," said Shabazz, who collected four hits and three RBI.

"We feel good now," he added. "If we beat the teams we're supposed to beat, we'll be in good shape."

After Shabazz struck out two of the first four Rock batters, he led off the Tiger first with a solo home run over the 303-foot mark in left field that was fair by inches. The blast came on a 2-2 pitch off of Rock-a-chaw starter and loser Casey Heitzmann.

"The pitch was a curve that was hung and inside," Shabazz said. "I was thinking just make contact. I knew it would be over, I didn't know if it would be fair."

The Tigers maintained the 1-0 lead until the third when Shabazz scored the second of his two runs on Jonathan Favre's sacrifice fly. Shabazz had singled with one out, moved to second on Casey Weems' fielder's choice, and stole third.

Bay High tacked on a solo run in the fifth to take a 3-0 lead. Centerfielder James Benton opened with a walk, moved to second on Shabazz's single, and scored on an error by St. Stanislaus first baseman Chris Davis.

Shabazz was working on a no-hitter until Rock centerfielder David Menasco hit the first of his two singles with a blooper that fell just over the outstretched glove of Tiger shortstop Luke Weems with one out in the fifth.

Shabazz, 3-3, lost his bid for a shutout in the sixth when Stanislaus scored a pair of runs to cut the lead to 3-2. SSC shortstop Eric Knight walked to open the inning, and scored from first two outs later when Benton misplayed a Menasco single. Benton's error allowed Menasco to advance to third, and he later scored on a wild pitch by Shabazz.

But the Tigers answered with a five-run sixth, the highlight coming on Shabazz's two-run triple. John Favre opened with a walk, Sammy Green, who was two-for-three, then followed with a single. Charlie Buckley's double drove in Favre, and Shabazz knocked in Buckley and Ray Ramsey, who had reached on an error. Brent Richardson, pinch running for Shabazz, scored on Casey Weems' sacrifice fly.

"That rally was the key," Bay coach Joey Brockhoff said. "We did not sit on the lead."

The right-hand hitting Shabazz called his opposite field triple his "best stroke of the night."

"I was thinking triple the whole way," he said.

St. Stanislaus scored once in the seventh on Eric Knight's RBI single that drove in Jimmy Smith, who had walked. After the Rocks loaded the bases with one out, Shabazz gave way to Luke Weems.

Shabazz gave up all three runs, only one of which was earned, walked five and struck out nine.

"(Shabazz) has been pitching like that all year," Brockhoff said. "He has not given up a lot of earned runs."

"(In a couple of games), we have not given him much run support."

Green collected two hits for the Tigers.

Heitzmann worked five innings, gave up six runs, five earned, on eight hits. He walked three and struck out one.

Bass study planned on Coast

A new study at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs will examine potential growth and survival differences between Gulf and Atlantic race striped bass in Mississippi's coastal tributaries.

The project, supported by a $20,000 contract from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, will be headed by GCRL fisheries biologist Larry C. Nicholson.

For two decades, the five Gulf of Mexico states have been working to restore depleted populations of striped bass in Gulf rivers. Although progress has been made, researchers have been unable to confirm any self-sustaining populations. Two genetic races of stripers, Atlantic and Gulf, have been used for restoring stocking.

Atlantic race fish have been used extensively because of greater availability, but a remnant population of Gulf race fish from the Apalachicola-Chattahoochee-Flint rivers system may offer growth and survival advantages in Gulf coastal reservoirs, according to a study conducted by the State of Florida.

Sufficient numbers of Gulf race fry are not currently available for Gulfwide restoration efforts, and field evaluation provided by the new GCRL study will help resource managers determine whether funds should be committed to produce more Gulf race fish.

Nicholson and his associates will stock Gulf and Atlantic race striped bass fry into separate, identical culture systems so that physical and chemical characteristics can be monitored. When fingerlings are harvested and tagged, researchers will identify any rearing and growth differences or survival variations.

Tagged fish will be stocked into major coastal tributaries. Project personnel will sample juvenile fish to determine survival and growth, as well as monitor and compare tag return date on the two races to determine survival, growth, condition and location of catch.

BAYS results

In the first game Thunder beat Picayune by a score of 3-1. Les Sacket accumulated two goals, and Trevor Kingston scored one. Nick Bienvenutti and Nathan Yow each had one assist.

In the second game, the Thunder won 6-2. Sacker scores four goals this game. Kingston and David Heaps each accounted for one. Bienvenutti got two assists.

Family Child Center recognized by UW

The Family Child Center was awarded the first Agency of the Year Award at the United Way of South Mississippi Annual Volunteer Recognition Banquet Feb. 27.

The award was given to the agency which best supported United Way throughout 1995 by promoting its relationship with United Way through all marketing materials, participating in campaign, and providing requested informational materials. The center received a $1,000 award.

"We wanted to establish an annual award to recognize our agencies which work to hard throughout the year," said Aletha Burge, UWSM executive director.

"We need our agencies' help in promoting United Way, its agencies and their many services. The competition for this award encourages our agencies to foster and strengthen our relationship throughout the year."

The Family Child Center, founded by South Mississippi Exchange Clubs in 1988, provides direct services to families at risk for child abuse through programs such as Parent Aide, Multidisciplinary Child Abuse Teams, Positive Parenting, Court School, Teen Parenting, Welcome Baby and Parents Support Group.

"The Center is very honored to have been selected as the recipient of this award," said Bridget Logan, Family Child Center executive director. "As we gear up to begin program expansion in our communities, we clearly see the difference United Way continues to help make in South Mississippi. During 1996 we challenge the community to volunteer their time to the United Way agency of their choice and 'Truly Be the Difference.'"

The center was recently selected by the Mississippi Department of Human Services Division of Family and Children Services as lead agency in a 22-agency collaboration that will provide primary prevention services to the Harrison County area.

Some of the agency's highlights for 1995 include:

— Agency staff coordinated and staffed 1,077 child victim cases at Multidisciplinary Team meetings.

— 190 child victims received the services of the center's court School Program.

— The Parent-Aide, Teen Parent and Welcome Baby Programs served 171 families representing 426 children and 280 adults during the last year.

— More than 225 public awareness presentations were made by center staff reaching in excess of 750,000 persons.

— The center's Court Orientation Program was one of 20 programs selected by the Justice Department as an example of an innovation program that assists in the prosecution of crime.

For information on the Family Child Center or to volunteer, call 868-8686.

TAKE ANOTHER ASPIRIN & IGNORE THE OBVIOUS.

Headache pain is often a warning signal to the body that something is wrong. Yet, often when we get rid of the pain, we're ignoring the problem behind it.

There are many causes of headaches. One of the most frequent is misalignment of one or more of the small spinal bones in the neck. When these CERVICAL VERTEBRAE are displaced, the nerves between them are affected. Headaches of all kinds may result, migraines, pain at the base of the skull, behind the eyes or the forehead.

Our doctors at Hoda Chiropractic Clinics are experienced in treating headaches of this kind, can restore cervical vertebrae to their proper positions, thus halting the painful nerve interference which causes some headaches.

When you have a headache, see Dr. Desmond Hoda.

Mrs. Favre honored

Mrs. Ethel Favre, right, receives honors from James C. Ladner, past president of the Hancock County Cattlemen's Association. Mrs. Favre was honored for her many years of dedicated service to the organization.

Hancock County Cattlemen's Association

The Hancock County Cattlemen's Association presented a plaque and check to Ethel Favre for her many years of outstanding service to the organization.

Mrs. Favre retired after 52 years of service as secretary to the Hancock County agent, and during that served several times as a substitute county, youth and homemaker agent.

When the Hancock County Cattlemen's Association was formed, Mrs. Favre was a valuable influence on the organization and continued operations, said James C. Ladner, past president.

Charlie Stone was the county agent Mrs. Favre served as secretary when she began her position in 1945. Other county agents were Howard Simmons, Olie Swords, John Smith, Lee Taylor, Randy Smith and Drew Bates.

Upon retirement in June, 1995, Mrs. Favre received all types of honors and praises from Mississippi State for her many years of loyal service.

The Cattlemen's Association first meetings in 1960 were held at the Hancock North Central Elementary School Cafeteria and then at the Kiln VFW.

The organization started out with a membership of 15 and has had a membership as high as 201.

From the organization's beginning, Mrs. Favre volunteered her services to make the Cattlemen's Association something special, Ladner said.

Over the years Delores Favre, Carl Olsen, Fritz Harris and Bill Harmon have also made great contributions to the Hancock County Cattlemen's Association.

Currently L.J. Breaux is president; Ray Spears, vice-president; and Janet Ladner, secretary-treasurer.

The association meets quarterly and for further information, Ladner can be contacted at 255-7218.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

Thursday, March 7, members of Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 entertained the residents of the Dixie White House Nursing Center in Pass Christian.

Carole Everidge, director of activities, had the day room filled with residents. Lena Mae Oustalet played the piano, and Roslyn Weathers led the singing. The residents joined in the singing, and everyone enjoyed the visit.

Thursday, March 14, the meeting of the auxiliary was held at the clubhouse on Green Meadow Road.

President Janelle Necaise opened the meeting; color-bearers Hazel Wohlschlegel and Charlotte Sellers advanced the colors; pro-tem chaplain Beatrice Ladner read the opening prayers; the Pledge of Allegiance was recited, and secretary Jeannette Ladner read the minutes of the previous meeting. Treasurer Janet Aime gave the financial report.

Necaise asked the various committees to give their reports. The most important activity is the Easter parade and the Easter egg hunt. The map was in Thursday's Echo, as well as plans concerning the registration and location of places involved.

Weather permitting, it will take place Saturday, March 23, if not, it will be March 30.

The flag was draped in memory of Mrs. Betty Breath, one of the charter members.

The colors were retired and the chaplain read the closing prayers.

Post and Auxiliary 139 announce the second annual Easter Party and Egg Hunt.

The event will be held Saturday, March 23 (with rain-out date of Saturday, March 30) at Bay St. Louis City Park, 300 S. Second Street, next to City Hall. The party for local children will immediately follow an Easter parade, sponsored by local businesses in cooperation with the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, who is celebrating its 50th anniversary. The parade will begin on Hwy. 90 and Beach Boulevard and will proceed to City Park. The parade is slated to begin at 1 p.m. with the party and egg hunt to begin about 2:30 p.m.

The Easter party will provide games for children, ages 1-9, with prizes and candy donated by local merchants. The eggs are being donated and dyed by members of the American Legion Auxiliary with help from local restaurants. The Easter Bunny will be on hand, along with Mickey Mouse and other surprises.

All children wishing to have their picture taken with the Easter Bunny will be given one free picture compliments of the City of Bay St. Louis and photographer Jim Loiacano.

The event will be accepting cash donations. The proceeds from all donations will benefit Hope Haven, an interim shelter for abandoned and abused children.

THE FARM stands for Great Freshness!

The difference between great freshness and just Okay freshness is time. At The Farm, we've built a system that rushes a product just picked in a field or orchard to us faster than anyone else we know of. No stops for brokerage. No stops for middle-men. No stops at big city markets for auctioning. The only time we slow down is for our own buyers & Quality Control inspectors. It's straight from the farm to The Farm. And it's another reason why we say we're ...doing MORE for you!
